

THE PRESS[®]

An INTERTEC / PRIMEDIA Publication March 1998

Polish screenprinter that won SGIA gold grows in size and prominence

KRAKOW, Poland – Lynka Promotional Textiles Ltd., a 1997 SGIA Golden Image gold medal winner in the process-color on white T-shirt contest, has become one of Poland's premier textile screenprinting operations.

The winning design – a promotional print for a Polish mineral water company – was printed with 13 separate colors.

According to SGIA, Lynka is the first European screenprinter to win the top prize in what has been one of the most highly competitive garment categories. The printer also won an honorable mention for another design in the same color-process category.

Lynka was formed in 1992 by John Lynch and Lynka Ltd.'s 13-color process print was the first SGIA Golden Image gold medal awarded to a European textile screenprinter in the process-color category. The winning print of a Polish mineral water took first place at the 1997 international trade show in Atlanta.

Anne Kalin as a tourist-oriented business that employed six people. Today, the screenprinter employs more than 100 workers in four cities: Krakow, Warsaw, Gdynia and Zakopane. The company now produces a variety of printed and embroidered garments for a variety of companies throughout central and eastern Europe. Clients include Walt Disney Co. and Polish universities.

Additionally, Lynka serves as a wholesale distributor of printed T-shirts, fleecewear and caps, supplying hypermarket stores in Poland. □